Access Taroona's popular foreshore track from the many streets which run down to the Derwent River. The track takes you on a gentle stroll around the coastline, along Hinsby and Taroona beaches, and amongst remnant coastal bushland. Blue gums, black gums, sheoaks and blackwoods form the canopy, with an understorey of hopbush, banksias, coast wattle, saltbush and grasses. Enjoy the views south to the Alum Cliffs and the Shot Tower, and over the Derwent River to Opossum Bay and South Arm.

Not so long ago, the foreshore was also a popular gathering place for the Traditional Custodians of the land, the Muwinina people. 'Taroona' is the Aboriginal name for chiton (kytun) – a shell animal found along the foreshore.
